

NAME _____

1. What does the FBI describe as their primary mission?
2. What are the 3 factors outlined by the FBI that directs the acceptance of any state or local cases?
3. Where is the best place to develop latent prints?
4. What should you do to latent prints before processing?
5. How do you pick the color of powder to dust for prints?
6. What happens if you overbrush latent prints?
7. What should you use to lift latent prints?
8. How do you pick the card color when using transparent tape?
9. How often should you photograph latent prints?
10. Why should you photograph latent prints individually?
11. What information goes on the label to be included in the latent print photograph?
12. What information goes on the photographer's log?
13. What are two reasons why fingerprint evidence should be stabilized?
14. What will friction do to fingerprints on a nonporous surface?

NAME _____

15. What are examples of porous pieces of evidence?

16. Why would it be important to submit known fingerprints and palm prints of everyone who may have handled the evidence?

17. Can palm prints for reference be recorded on the blank side of fingerprint cards?

18. What minimum information should be included on fingerprint cards?

19. What notation is included if the person printed is not a suspect?

20. What do the letters in IAFIS mean?

21. When a search of IAFIS is requested, what is mandatory?

22. When providing digital photographs, what three things must be documented?

23. What will the FBI do if a latent print is presented as a facsimile or photocopy?

24. In what type of container should hands or fingers of unknown or deceased individuals be packaged?

25. In what condition should you ship the remains?

26. What happens to the human remains after the FBI processes them?

27. What is the address for the FBI crime lab?